

A streetlight is visible on the left side of the image, with its light glowing. The background is a sunset sky with orange and red hues, and the silhouettes of trees are visible on the right side.

Report it and we are on it!

Report an inoperative streetlight
in SmartHub by clicking
Contact us > Report An Outage > Other Issues

SmartHub

Burrowing owls in our back yards

The Florida burrowing owl is a state threatened species. They can be found in vacant lots and some urban areas in Southwest Florida. Cape Coral has the largest burrowing owl population in the state with an estimated 1,000 nesting pair. These peculiar birds do not migrate and often hide in the summer. If you see them, keep your distance. Your presence may prevent them from hunting for food, especially if there are chicks present. For more info, visit www.ccfreindsofwildlife.org and look for the Burrowing Owl Festival every year in February.